Often a sweetness comes as if on loan, stays just long enough to make sense of what it means to be alive,

then returns to its dark source. As for me, I don't care where it's been, or what bitter road it's traveled to come so far, to taste so good.

—Stephen Dunn

“Human progress is neither automatic nor inevitable. Even a superficial look at history reveals that no social advance rolls in on the wheels of inevitability. Every step toward the goal of justice requires sacrifice, suffering, and struggle; the tireless exertions and passionate concern of dedicated individuals. Without persistent effort, time itself becomes an ally of the insurgent and primitive forces of irrational emotionalism and social destruction. This is no time for apathy or complacency. This is a time for vigorous and positive action.”

the fishing has been good. especially tuna. cast the right bait and the fish will rise. their behavior is predictable and are we much different? consumers are manipulated to want things for which they have no need. the time when people only purchased things they needed is simply history, and would represent only a minute fraction of today's commerce. we are different from the tuna because we have transcendence in addition to facticity, the intractable condition of existence, which is something like...each life comes with its own death(amen). transcendence is ideals, aspirations rapport with another person...matters of spirit...not accredited to the average tuna. humans experience in enormous variety which, once again, begs definition to "truth". we Kant really go there due to the shortness of life and the complexity of the problem. albert e. said that past, present and future is but a stubbornly persistent illusion...adding to the confusion. in our multiple interactions it is inevitable that opinions clash. all experiences depend on the experiencers and all observations on the observables. we only know ourselves through other people.

Fall Harvest Dinner

The Florence Farmers Market will celebrate its second season with a Fall Harvest Dinner from 4:30–7 p.m. Sept. 14, in the Florence Food Share garden. The cost is $65 per person, which includes hors d'oeuvres, a full family-style dinner and beverages. Funds raised will support the Market. Reservations are required and seating is limited.

“September is a time of harvest bounty and Chef Anthony Velarde, formerly with Ona Restaurant & Lounge, Yachats, and chef of the soon-to-open Eatwell Organic Noodle in Florence, will be working his magic with food from the market vendors,” said Market President Mary Shaw. “Market baker, Gayle Sisson will be creating a seasonal dessert.”

The menu will showcase some of the bounty available at the market and includes vegan and gluten-free options.

Selections include grilled chicken from Fog Hollow Farm, smoked tuna from Yachats Brewery + Farm Store, hand-pressed cider from Greenfields Farm, green beans, summer greens, mushrooms, ratatouille, pasta, salad and more, much sourced from market produce vendors.

The Food Share garden is located at 2190 Spruce Street. Parking is available in front of Food Share or New Life Lutheran Church. Please note, the garden ground is uneven and covered with bark, so please wear appropriate footwear. It is not ADA accessible.

Tickets may be purchased by check made out to Florence Farmers Market at the Market Info Booth on Tuesdays from 3 to 6 PM, at Bay and Kingwood streets, or through a secure online payment via PayPal. For a link to the PayPal site, please visit the Market's Facebook page, www.Facebook.com/FlorenceOregonFarmersMarket.

Dress for "a night out in Florence."

For more information, please call Mary Shaw at 541-261-5423 or email contact@florencefarmersmarket.org.

You might say reality is the result of complex negotiations between the observer and the observed. But that's simply a point of view.

Elemental Ode to Tomato

In December, unabated,
the tomato
invades
the kitchen,
it enters at lunchtime,
takes its ease
on countertops,
among glasses, butter dishes,
blue saltcellars.
It sheds its own light,
benign majesty.
Unfortunately, we must
murder it:
the knife
sinks into living flesh,
red
viscera,
a cool
sun
profound,
inexhaustible,
populates the salads
of Chile,
happily, it is wed
to the clear onion
and to celebrate the union we pour
oil,
essential
child of the olive,
onto its halved hemispheres,
pepper adds its fragrance,
salt, its magnetism:
it is the wedding
of the day,
parsley
hoists
its flag,
potatoes
bubble vigorously,
the aroma
of the roast
knocks
at the door, it's time!
come on!

the new curmudgeon

ever notice how something is printed as a statement but has a question at the end, offered as a disclaimer?
Aliens invade los angeles? (was there ever any doubt?) all day, all night, mary ann?
down by the seaside sifting sand???

i know about bear poop and elk poop but what's a nincom? do we have any of these out here?

how shall we spend our brief moment in time? albert e. said" the distinction between past, present, and future is but a stubbornly persistent illusion!"
trapped within our concept of life, our narrow view provides an illusion of entirety beyond which we cannot see...an infinity of lifetimes of which we are basically ignorant.

back again...wyatt earp said the best way to survive a gunfight is " don't show up for it".

"we the people"...
were things really that simple then? we are so factioned now as to render any such terminology utterly useless. humanity presents itself in such an endless array...but then they weren't talking about but one particular faction...at the time it actually affected only nine states.

in the welch language magnificent is god i dog.....go figure
